Procedure for filing a complaint and conducting the enquiry

Inquiry procedure

Generally, the inquiry must be initiated by the ICC as soon as the complaint has been filed and taken into notice by the committee. The ICC is also supposed to give a chance to the complainant and respondent to represent their case regarding the matter. Below is the procedure of inquiry on the case of sexual harassment

The ICC must, within 7 working days after receiving the complaint needs to forward one copy each to the respondent and ask for his response.

The respondent would have 10 working days to submit his response to the complaint and he can also attach some relevant documents or witnesses to his reply

The ICC shall hear both the complainant and the respondent on the stipulated date(s) and the principles of natural justice will be followed accordingly. Neither of the parties can represent themselves by a legal practitioner.

The process of inquiry shall be completed by the ICC within 90 days from the date on which the complaint was received
